From the London Times, Oct. 2.

From the Leuisn Times, Oct. 2.

Experiments were yesterday made at the Islington cattle market to illustrate the use of dynamite as a means for slaughtering cattle humanely. Mr. Thomas Johnson, of Dudler, killed three bullocks in this way. To show the safety with which this explosive can be employed, small quantities were first burnt without annexplosion. The charge with which the cattle were afterward killed consisted of about an ounce of pinkish, pasty substance, into which had been plunged a detonstor in a fuse.

The bullocks, bought that morning in the market, were led into Mr. Thomas Cross' slaughter-house, and tied up to posts there in the ordinary way. Although other animals had recently been dispatched with the pole-axe close by, the bullocks selected betrayed no consciousness of their approaching fate. There was no tremor or aweat upon them. The operator, fondling them, passed across the forebead a fillet of string secured around the horns, and so arranged that midwy between horns and even and ev

Then the fuse was fired, and n two cases the bullock was killed at once by the explosion of the ounce of

A hole was made in the skull by the force of the explosion, but the concussion was entirely local, and people standing close by left nothing. They heard a loud report. The animals were immediately pithed by passing a cane down their spinal marrows to remove all sensibility, and in a quarter of an hour their carcases, atripped of the hide and divided into two, were hanging up as sides of beef, ready to be transported to the metropolitan dead-meat market. The brain was found to be entirely broken up. With the first boilock tried the experiment was less successful. The charge had been placed too low. The animal was felled, but struggled on the ground. A man was, however, ready with the pole-are. He smote once, and no more, and the poor beast was out of its agony.

Afterward a bullock was killed with one blow of the pole-are, and another by A hole was made in the skull by the

Afterward a bullock was killed with one blow of the pole-are, and another by the French method, the vertebre being sevared with a knife at the back of the neck. In each case the cane was used immediately afterward. All three modes of alaughter, properly carried into effect, seemed as little cruel as is consistent with the necessity of inflicting death; but the pole-are and knife, both used with consummate skill yesterday, require considerable practice to be employed with dexterity. In country alaughter houses, where the men have less experience, a thick-browed bull is sometimes struck again and again before he dies.

The dynamite may be applied at leis-

The dynamite may be applied at leis-ure to the proper place, and the operator ought to be able to count on keeping it there. An objection to its use is the re-port which it makes. The second bullock port which it makes. The second bullock was obviously frightened by the noise of the explosion of the first charge. The three animals were killed in three minutes at the expense of about 34. In the Black Country, where dynamite is common as a blasting material for mines, it is said to be already in practical use in the slaughter-house.
